Adobe Middle Eastern products can function with Windows or Macintosh, depending upon your order. You can easily prepare your computer to handle Middle Eastern and other languages. The first thing you should do is activate the keyboard drivers (see instructions below). Then install your Adobe "ME" CDs.

SYSTEM PREFERENCES: Adobe CS4-ME can function with Windows XP or Vista; and for Macintosh System 10.4.11 and higher.

WINDOWS XP/VISTA USERS: For Middle Eastern language support, you need to activate 'regional language support' for Arabic, Farsi or Hebrew. This turns on the keyboards for Arabic, Farsi or Hebrew with Windows XP. To do so, click on Start > Help and Support and then type Arabic, Farsi or Hebrew into the search box. That will present you with instructions to activate.

Note: you will likely want to add additional language support, and to install left to right support. Make sure to check the appropriate subjects and review 'advanced settings' option.

MACINTOSH SYSTEM 10.4.11 USERS: To activate Middle Eastern language support, you need to first install support for Arabic, Hebrew or Farsi into Macintosh System 10.4.11 (or higher).

To do so, click on Preferences -> International -and select INPUT MENU, and check the Arabic, Persian, and/or Hebrew keyboards. Restart computer, and then install Adobe-ME software CDs.

Enjoy your Adobe-ME software, there is none better!

IMPORTANT- Install Adobe ME software CD's AFTER activating your computer's language support described above. You cannot have multiple "CS4" versions of same Adobe programs installed on same computer, however CS4-ME can co-exist with CS/CS2/CS3 editions. You cannot install previous older versions after installing CS4-ME. Products must be installed in progression, older to newer.
